

Logical Flow of Ideas

Albert Einstein once said, “I fear the day that technology will surpass our human interaction.

The world will have a generation of idiots.” Many years later, with the introduction of the mobile phone, his words became reality when DynaTAC 8000X mobile came on the market (“History of mobile phones,” 2017). At first, most people did not own a mobile since they were too expensive for the average person to purchase. However, over the last 30 years, prices have decreased to the point that nearly everyone owns a mobile, now. This tiny device has led to the rise of three momentous effects on society: ease of communications yet alienation and addiction.

↔ word or phrase referring to word or idea

— new information in previous sentence